Commentary

May 2024 Investment Summary

May 2024 was a positive month for the Active range with returns ranging from +0.30% for Active 1 to +0.75% for Active 3. P Acc share class with data sourced from FE analytics as at 31 May 2024.

May 2024 was a better month for portfolios generally compared to April 2024.

Most major equity markets rose in May as global stock market sentiment recovered from April's falls, with the Nasdaq, S&P 500 and FTSE 100 moving to new all-time highs, led by better than expected inflation data, resilient corporate earnings and the revaluation of interest rate cuts. Developed markets outperformed emerging markets as Utilities and Financial Services led the sector-wise performance while Healthcare continued to lag.

Government bond prices were higher as the ten-year Treasury yield edged down to 4.51% from 4.69% over the month to May. Resilient economic data has whittled away hopes for imminent interest rate cuts, as investors continue to revise lower their expectations on the number of cuts from the Fed in 2024.

The US labour market government data beat expectations to show payrolls increased by 272,000 in May, while retail spending was unexpectedly flat, evidencing that the US labour market remains strong and dampening hopes of imminent interest rates cuts. US consumer confidence also unexpectedly improved in May, as households were more upbeat about the stock market although many are still concerned on the impact of inflation, and future business conditions, job availability and income. Unemployment data ticked up slightly to 4.0% surprising market expectations for it to remain unchanged at 3.9%.

Conflict in the Middle East continues as the US and France (and others) seek de-escalation between Israel and Lebanon's Hizbollah which remains carefully balanced. The conflicts Impact remains limited on the global economy. Shipping companies continue to divert vessels to avoid the possibility of attack, Brent Crude prices closed at over $79/barrel from $83/barrel in May.

Central banks' continue to keep monetary policy tight enough to drive inflation back towards the 2% target, there is growing evidence of a continued softening in prices. Central banks may be in a position to ease policy rates later this year, but employment activity and inflation data over the next few months will be critical to the evolution of their thinking. The US economy continues to look strong, but other regions, including the Eurozone, face more challenging conditions.

While recent central bank meetings have suggested the next move in interest rates will be downwards, officials have been cautious to confirm when these cuts will be implemented, with a careful eye on data to ensure a sustainable route back to the inflation target.

WS Prudential Risk Managed Active - Tactical asset allocation activity
